As mental health awareness month comes to an end, Senator Alicia V. Barnes in collaboration with Senators Novelle E. Francis Jr., Allison DeGazon, and Oakland Benta, advises the public of upcoming maternal mental health workshops.

According to the World Health Organization, ten percent of pregnant women around the world and thirteen percent of post-partum mothers experience a range of mental health issues such as anxiety and depression. The percentage increases amongst communities of color, with thirty-eight percent suffering from illnesses such as obsessive compulsive and post-traumatic stress disorders.

Senators Barnes, Francis, DeGazon, and Benta have partnered with Shivonne Odom, LCPC, LPC, NCC, of Akoma Counseling Concepts to host a series of maternal mental health workshops to be launched in September.

The first workshop, scheduled for September 16, 2019, at the VI Cardiac Center, will focus on maternal mental health awareness and will include a voluntary maternal mental health screening. The workshop is open to all mothers, expectant mothers, students, and mental health professionals.

“The goal of these activities is to reduce rates of maternal mortality in the U.S. Virgin Islands,” Odom said.

The following workshops (to be announced) will provide continuing education training to both mental and medical health professionals on maternal mental health screenings.

Odom is a Licensed Professional Counselor, a certified school counselor, and a National Certified Counselor in Washington, DC and a Licensed Clinical Professional Counselor in the state of Maryland. She is also a board Approved Clinical Supervisor by the Maryland Board of professional counselors and therapists.

Odom recently launched a continuing education training program for medical health professionals at her alma mater, Howard University, in March 2019, and also held workshops at Bowie State University. Odom is also scheduled to present on minority mental health at the Post-Partum Support International Conference in Portland, Oregon this summer.

“We can’t treat what we don’t acknowledge. What we don’t acknowledge becomes silenced,” Odom said. As these workshops are scheduled for September, we ask that you save the date, and stay tuned for further updates.

2019 HURRICANE SEASON PREPAREDNESS

Preparedness for those living in single-family homes is very different from plans created for those who live in apartments.

Living in an apartment community poses some unique consideration. Sharing your walls and communal areas means some actions are your responsibilities, while others depend on your neighbors and management.

In this issue, we share valuable tips to help apartment residents prepare in case of a storm. Please share these tips with those who live in an apartment.

Thank you!

PROTECT YOUR HOME

Make sure the apartment is in good repair and safe for you to shelter-in-place.

- Bring in outdoor furniture, planters and other items from patios and balconies.
- Get shutters or panels for your sliding glass doors and windows. Ask the building's management or landlord if a specific style is required. If you're a renter, ask if your landlord provides them and who will install them before the storm.
- Identify your safest room, probably an interior bedroom, bath or hall, and stay there when windy conditions become threatening.
- Consider sheltering in an apartment on the lower level if you live on a higher floor.

STORE 10 DAYS' WORTH OF SUPPLIES

Storage space in apartments is often limited so storing your supplies may be challenging. If your kitchen is small, find space in a closet, under the bed or even behind the couch. Fill bathtubs and the washer with water that can be used to flush toilets and for sanitation needs.

STEER CLEAR OF WINDOWS

Don't stand near windows during a storm, and keep your curtains drawn. The National Hurricane Center advises against using tape since it can cause a false sense of security and also lead to larger, more dangerous shards of glass blowing through your apartment.

Now is the time to be prepared!

If you or someone in your family is experiencing issues with disaster-related stress, call the Disaster Distress Helpline 1-800-985-5990, TTY 1-800-846-8517.

Promote the Hotline!

The LTRG has a dedicated HOTLINE for beneficiaries to use to get connected with Disaster Case Managers. Please share this flyer (in English and Spanish) broadly within our community. We don't want ANYONE to fall through the cracks!
